The Democratic counties have therefore two more delegates than they are entitled to, upon any fair and just principle of apportionment. Now, permit me to call the attention of this committee to the result of this apportionment in another point of view. Here is a list of Whig counties with twenty-two delegates, and let us see what is the aggregate amount of population, and of taxes, which they pay into the treasury of the state--Now, I present a list of Democratic counties, to which are assigned twenty-two delegates, and what is the aggregate amount of their white population, and of their taxes Twenty-two Democratic delegates, therefore, represent an average of 4, 812 white population, and 3,...
