Up to 1861, the entire fishery of the river was practically in the hands of the lessee of Salmon Hall, and as he killed every fish that he could, the proprietors above ceased to preserve salmon from which they reaped no benefit, and thus all the natives above Salmon Hall were permitted to fish how, when, and where they pleased, so that up to Bassenthwaite Lake there was no attempt at preservation. Then came the Act of 1861, and fish passes were VOL. II. H ordered to be placed on the Salmon Hall Weirs, and on the Fitz Weir above them. 1862. As no passes had been placed on the Salmon Hall Weirs, the cruives could not lawfully be worked, and thus, being left open, fish passed into the upper waters in such quantities that the Secretary of the Cockermouth...
