Deep in Navarino s bay, His imperial fleet was moor d, Ranged in battle-like array, With his bravest hands on board. O er the wave with eagle speed, On their glorious way they go; And the British boldly lead France and Russia to the foe. Cattain Hutchinson. We were now within two miles or less of the entrance to Navarino Bay, all sail set, stud-sails low and aloft, when the boatswain piped to dinner, and many a one assembled at the mess-table for the last time. The probability of never meeting again cast a soberness over the mess, which is generally a scene of banter and mirth. One or two tried to raise the spirits of their messmates by the usual sallies of nautical wit, but the effect was only momentary. My companion Morfiet was particularly dejected, and seemed still to brood over the words of the German. I tried to cheer him. Don t think, M., said he, that I intend to play the coward. No, no; you ll see, if you be spared, that I can fight like a man, and will stand to my gun while the ship s afloat, or till a shot takes me off; but, M., if I go, as I feel assured that I will, will you try and see Sally W that you have so often heard me speak of, and tell her, that though I lie at the bottom of the Bay...
