The Alpine TROUT, or Gilt CHARR, abounds in the lakes of Ulswater and Winandermere, in Westmoreland, and in the lakes of Llyn Quellyn near the foot of Snowdon, in North Wales; it is in length about twelve inches; its colour silvery, with the back strongly tinged with olive-green, and the sides thickly freckled with very minute bright-red and blackish specks; its head very large, and scales very small: on the whole, it is similar to the common Trout, only rather broader. Those which inhabit the clearest and coldest waters are observed to be of the richest colours. It is a fish of great delicacy of flavour, and much esteemed as food. The Alpine Trout may be successfully angled for with any of the Trout baits, but more particularly with the fly. The GWINIAD inhabits the same lakes as the Alpine Trout, and is to...
