Not illustrated. 1885 Excerpt: .corroborate the inference that the wooden basement was coextensive with its area, a quantity of broken bones, apparently of the sheep and small ox, were found along with ashes imbedded some 2 feet below the surface and immediately outside the wood. The average diameter of the mound, measuring from the outside of the woodwork, was 60 feet; and at spring tide the water covered it to a depth of about 5 feet. No stone implements, or other relics of man, beyond the charcoal and animal bones already noticed, were found. At this stage I considered it imprudent to advise any further excavations until such time as antiquaries would have an opportunity of having their attention directed to the unusual position and character of this structure. Moreover, when Mr Stuart comes to reside on the island, which he expects to do next summer, such further investigations would have the advantage of his own careful supervision. Meantime Mr George M Kenzie, whose intelligence in superintending the day s work was only equalled by the anxiety he displayed in ascertaining the archaeological value of the discovery, thus writes in answer to a request to ascertain if there are any oral traditions floating among the natives regarding the island and its connection with the mainland: --EniSKi, Appin, Oetober 3, 1884. There is an old story current here that a man who stole cattle off the island was shot on the spot (site of cairn) by the owner of the island...
