This place was particularly marked, during the scenes preceding the American Revolution, by the love of liberty herein manifested, and the spirit of resistance never wavered during all the events of our great struggle. No little credit belongs to Boston for hastening forward the contest with the Mother Country, and praise is also due to her for having remained true to the cause of American Liberty, till it was confirmed by the Treaty of Peace in 1783. In consequence of the active interest which the men of Boston took in the scenes of the Revolution, they signalized many memorable events with special honor and attention. The Massacre of March 5, 1770, was the chief act of cruelty which spoke to their hearts, and this was commemorated by orations and processions for thirteen successive years. That anniversary yielded at length to the Fourth of July, as an era of greater national importance; and from the year 1783, this day has been uninterruptedly celebrated by the authorities of Boston. The same can be said of no other town or city in the land. But it is unnecessary, to dwell further upon a matter which has been eloquently and instructively set forth by Hon. B. F. Hallett, as will be seen on perusing his speech at the Faneuil Hall dinner. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
