RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 122 pages. Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.3in. This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1901 Excerpt: . . . without the aid of a ladder or steps. Each range contains 245 ft. lineal of shelving, and calculating at the usual rate of 8 volumes per foot, will carry about 2080 volumes. Thus each story will carry about 35, 500 volumes, or, in all, seven stories 248, 500 volumes. (Every additional set of two ranges, seven stories high, planned on the northern end, will carry 29, 120 volumes.) Thorough ventilation is obtained by a space of 5 in. being left open in the deck along the front of each book range, which, besides aiding the circulation of air, helps to diffuse the light, and affords communication between decks. The shelves themselves are fully perforated, being constructed of inverted U section of rolled steel, all strongly framed together. The whole of the shelves and partitions will be subjected to the Bower-Barff treatment, which permanently protects them from rust or corrosion in contact with the books. Thus the danger of lodgment of dust, and the harbouring of silver fish, and other enemies to books, will be minimised. The other rooms in connection with the library are not included in the present scheme, but are shown in the proposed wing to connect the library with the main building. The librarians room is made sufficiently large to accommodate meetings of the Library Trust. On the ground floor the Nicholson Museum has been planned immediately below the library reading-room, and the space divided into three spacious courts 17 ft. high....
