Confirmation And Extension Of The Undulatory Theory. AFTER the undulatory theory had been developed in all its main features, by its great authors, Young and Fresnel, although it bore marks of truth which could hardly be fallacious, there was still here, as in the case of other great theories, a period in which difficulties were to be removed, objections answered, men s minds familiarized to the new conceptions thus presented to them; and in which, also, it might reasonably be expected that the theory would be extended to facts not at first included in its domain. This period is, indeed, that in which we are living; and we might, perhaps with propriety, avoid the task of speaking of our living contemporaries. But it would be unjust to the theory not to notice some of the remarkable events, characteristic of such a period, which have already occurred; and this may be done very simply. In the case of this great theory, as in that of gravitation, by far the most remarkable of these confirmatory researches were conducted by the authors of the discovery, especially Fresnel. And in looking at what he conceived and executed for this purpose, we are, it appears to me, strongly reminded of Newton, by the wonderful inventiveness and sagacity with which he devised experiments, and applied to them mathematical reasonings. 1. Double Refraction of Compressed Glass.--One of these confirmatory experiments was the production of double refraction by the...
